

access denied!

Viper on the inside keeps intruders on the outside

The Viper range of shock sensors is the reliable choice for perimeter protection with a market leading range tailored to meet the needs of both installer and end-user.

With the latest user-specified features, Viper shock sensors incorporate removable electronics and dual stage sensitivity for a more accurate set up in the most testing environments.

You can rely on Honeywell as your partner of choice for security.

Honeywell